part two

Part Two is devoted to the writing of names in shorthand. It contains:

177 common names of women.

189 common names of men.

1,015 most common surnames in the United States taken from a list compiled by the Social Security Administration.

In general, it is wise to write names as fully as possible because context is of no assistance in transcribing. If a name occurs several times during dictation and it appears that it may be used several times more, the writer might improvise a shortcut for it. For example, if the dictator uses the name Mr. Baldwin several times, the writer might abbreviate it to the brief form Mr. with an intersected b. However, when the name Baldwin comes up again in dictation sometime later, the writer would be wise to write it again in full.

People are proud of their names, and they are understandably annoyed when their names are misspelled. Therefore, check carefully when the name Brown, for example, is dictated to determine whether it is spelled Brown or Browne—the shorthand outline is the same.

part three

Part Three is devoted to the writing of geographical names. It is divided into three sections: (1) The United States; (2) Principal Cities of the United States; and (3) Foreign geographical expressions. It contains:

51 States

90 American cities

382 Foreign geographical expressions

In writing American geographical expressions, it is usually safe to use abbreviated forms such as n-e-b for Nebraska and n-a-r-k for Newark. However, there are occasions when the writer must be careful when transcribing an abbreviated form. Is it Pittsburgh (with the h), Pennsylvania; or is it Pittsburg (without the h), Kansas? Is it Worcester, Massachusetts, or Wooster, Ohio?

Some of the foreign geographical expressions may safely be abbreviated, such as e-ing for England and k-a-n for Canada. The writer would be wise, however, to write most foreign cities and countries as fully as possible.

Part Four consists of a compilation of 1,396 useful business phrases presented in alphabetical order. The phrases were selected from a phrase study made by the authors of the phrasing content of 1,500 business letters representing 50 types of businesses. In all, the letters contained 250,143 running words.

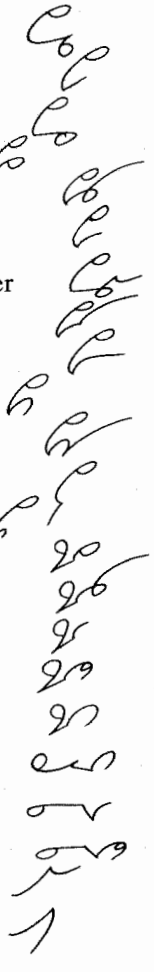

The phrases in this compilation are useful to every shorthand writer, no matter in which field he or she uses shorthand. However, the phrases must be so well learned that they come to the writer's mind automatically. If the writer must pause for even the slightest fraction of a second in composing or recalling the outline for a phrase, that phrase becomes a handicap rather than a help.

Occasionally, writers may find it helpful to devise a phrase or shortcut of their own to represent an expression that occurs again and again in their dictation. For example, if a writer finds that the book title Gregg Shorthand Dictionary occurs again and again in the dictation (as it would occur in the dictation of a stenographer working for one of the authors of this book), he or she might abbreviate the title to gay-intersected ish-d.

This expedient, however, should be used with caution. A few such shortcuts will be helpful; too many can be a handicap.

part five

Part Five contains abbreviations for 126 expressions, with a suggested shorthand outline given for each expression.

Some expressions are dictated and transcribed almost exclusively in the abbreviated form—FOB (free on board). Others may be dictated and transcribed either in full or in the form of initials—AV (audiovisual).

There are many acceptable variations in the use of periods and capitals in abbreviations. For example, the expression revolutions per minute may be expressed rpm, r.p.m., or RPM.

the metric system

Part Six contains 48 suggested shortcuts for common metric terms. If you take dictation in which there are many occurrences of metric measurements, you will have frequent use for the abbreviated forms given below. It is not wise to attempt to learn these forms until you know you will have use for them.

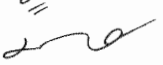

The metric system was devised by France and adopted there by law in 1799. Since that time its use has become almost universal except in Great Britain and the United States. It is rapidly coming into use in those two countries and, therefore, it is possible that you will need these special outlines. If the terms occur only infrequently in your dictation, it is better to write them in full.

The following abbreviations will be useful to those who must frequently take metric measurements in dictation.

kilo-	1,000
hekto-	100
deka-	10
deci-	1/10
centi-	1/100
milli-	1/1,000
micro-	1/1,000,000
